GIRLS WHOUSE SLANG

A CONVERSATION BETWEEN TWO COLLEGE GRADUATES.

Slang in the Mouths of Men is Bad Enough, but When Well Bred Young Women Are Addicted to the Habit It Becomes Abo-lutely Intolerable.

Dear girls, avoid slang. There are so many reasons why you should not use it, and only one excuse in its favor that I have ever heard from any reliable authority! Here it is:
Oliver Wendell Holmes, in one of his racy breakfast table talks, says: "Don't think I undervalue the proper use and application of a cant word or phrase. It adds piquancy to conversation as a mushroom does to a sauce." That this is the idea most young people have when they first begin to use it all will admit, but unfortunately it is like moderate drinking in its tendency, so insinuating in its growth as a habit, and they become so "addicted to it" (to follow out the simile), that it seems impossible to make themselves intelligible without it. I have heard young ladies (?) talking who seemed to have an entire vocabulary composed of slang which would be as utterly unintelligible to a well bred English or Scotch girl as Chinese or Greek.

To quote the veteran philosopher again:
"These expressions come to be algebraic symbols of minds which have grown too weak or indolent to discriminate. They are the blank checks of intellectual bankruptcy. You may fill them up with whatever idea you like. It makes no difference, for there are no funds in the treasury upon which they are drawn."

That of course is very severe, but I have often heard quite clever and well educated young ladies using those odious "blank checks" to such an extent that any one not knowing them intimately might readily have supposed their "intellectual bank" empty.

I wonder what Dr. Holmes would have thought of an actual conversation between two young ladies in good society, so called, who sat behind me in the grand
"and at a baseball match last summer.
I can give it almost verbatim:

"Say, Jen (abbreviated form of Jennie; life is too short to use the whole of a person's name), who is the 'fly' looking 'sundie' in the yellow striped 'get up'?"
"Oh, 'come off the roof'! To pretend you don't know Cob. (C. O. B. are the young gentlemen's initials wittily converted into 'Cob.') After the way you 'went for' him at the ball last week!
You can't 'stuff' me with that kind of gag, Miss Innocent."

"Oh, is that Cob? He must be 'off his nut' to 'rig' himself in such a 'swagger' way."

"Oh, Jen, look at Cob now! He is horribly 'rattled.' Make (short for Mabel) 'slung a glance' at him, and he lost his head as well as his base."

"Is she 'mashed' on Cob?"
"Ha, ha! 'Pull down your vest'! Do you think Mabel's 'off her base'? She likes him 'to trot her round' and 'stump up the needful' for ice cream, etc., but she likes Alf Jones better 'all the same-ee.' You can 'bet your sweet life' she won't marry Cob."

"Look at him now. 'You bet' he's 'hustling'!"

"Get there, Eh!" "Ruddogore!" "That was a 'boss' run!" and so on ad infinitum, ad nauseum. Altho this is a perfectly audible voice, and they were seemingly unaware that there was anything vulgar or out of the usual in their conversation.
Probably there was not, and yet those two young ladies were college graduates and were possessed of more than average ability.

If you think this description exaggerated, listen critically to the next unrestrained conversation between two young ladies whom you know to be guilty of using slang freely. I fancy I hear you say, "But I never could talk like that." Take care! Just as confident ones as you have begun by using a few slang words—"they are so cute and expressive, you know!"—and ended by forming a vulgar and enslaving habit which took great strength of mind and firm perseverance to break. The worst stage of a slang devotee is when she grows utterly unconscious of or indifferent to the habit. There is very little hope of improvement for her. The only safe way is never to form the habit at all.

Dear young girls, on you the "language of the future" in great measure depends. You are the coming mothers and teachers and will have an all powerful influence in molding the language of the next generation to come and numberless generations after that. See to it that it is a language of intelligence, grace and purity.—Miss Frank Davis in Wives and Daughters.

The Value of a Good Address.
Young men should study to talk well —to state their propositions with a clearness and force that will make their hearers feel that the speaker has reached the gist of the matter, and that his opinion is of some weight. You will notice a man coming into the office. There is something in his very appearance and the way he carries himself that commands respect and attention. A canvasser for a book came into my office only yesterday who was a splendid illustration of it. I had no intention of buying his cyclopedia. But he was well dressed and intelligent. He seemed to understand my wants, and in five minutes we were talking busily together. He sold me $120 worth of books.

I think that a good personal address is something too little cultivated. I would rather have it than a profession.—Interview in New York Press.

The Bootblack's Polish.
A gentleman, having had his boots cleaned by a boy in a Dublin street, paid the shoeblack with a considerable degree of haughtiness, on which the little fellow, when the other had got a short way off, said:
"Arrah, now! all the polish you have is on your boots, and I gave it to ya."

THE RENO CREAMERY.

The Most Complete Butter and Cheese Factory in the United States.
The Reno Creamery, established in the Spring of 1891 as an experiment by W. H. Gould & Sons, is now one of the most complete and thoroughly equipped butter and cheese factories in the United States, and its products are in demand at the highest market prices throughout this State and California, in fact the capacity of the factory is inadequate to the task of supplying the demand.
THE CREAMERY
Is situated about a mile east of Reno, near the south bank of the Truckee river. It is delightfully located among o'chards and alfalfa fields. A stream of pure mountain water flows by the building, and a deep well sunk to a granite formation supplies the water for washing in the manufacture of the products of the creamery. The building consists of two stories and a basement 90 feet wide by 70 feet in length. The power is furnished by a steam engine. Pumps convey the water from the stream and well to every room in the building. Pipes are also arranged to convey hot water and steam to every part of the premises. The butter room is situated in the basement, which has cemented walls and floors, thus insuring cleanliness and so furnished with pipes and ventilators that it can be kept at any required temperature at all seasons of the year. There is a cold storage room also in the basement adjoining the butter room, where the air is pure and at all times odorless, wood being used in the ceiling and floor. The second floor is divided into a weighing room, separating and weighing rooms, cream room, cheese making room, power room, store room, wash room, butting room and office, and the third floor is used for cheese curing.
MILK AND BUTTER.
Early in the morning teams from the surrounding dairy farms commence arriving at the creamery with wagons loaded with ten gallon cans of milk fresh from the cows. The milk is weighed and sampled as it is emptied from the cans brought by the dairymen, into tanks from which it is conveyed by pipes to the separators. If to be used for butter making, and to the cheese room if to be used for cheese. Before the milk enters the separator it passes through a steam heater which raises the temperature so as to allow complete separation of the cream from the milk. The separator revolves about 8,000 times a minute and works on the principle of gravitation, the milk, in consequence of its greater specific gravity, going to the outside where it discharges, while the cream flows over the top something like water from an artesian well pipe. In the cream room the cream is cooled to the proper temperature and "ripened," a process which requires about 24 hours, and is then run into churns worked by steam power. The butter, as it comes from the churn is granulated and is thoroughly separated from the buttermilk by a process of washing which requires two or three hours to complete. Each salt is used at the creamery, and the butter is moulded in two pound bricks, the whole process being accomplished by machinery, no hand touching it at any time or in any stage of its manufacture.
CHEESE MAKING
The milk for making cheese is conveyed from the weighing room to the cheese room where it is discharged into vats of the capacity of 6,000 pounds of milk each. There are at present three such vats in place in the cheese room. They are arranged so that the temperature of the milk can be raised or lessened at will. Here the milk is separated into curd and whey by means of rennet extract. The curd is prepared and placed in gang presses operated by a screw and moulded into cakes containing about thirty pounds each. When thoroughly pressed the cakes are taken to the curing room, where they are kept about four weeks at a fixed temperature before they are placed on the market. The cheese making department is under the supervision of Matt Michaels, a graduate of the Wisconsin Dairy School, who understands all details of the business and is said to be one of the best cheese makers in the United States.
IN GREAT DEMAND.
The products of the creamery are in great demand in Sacramento and San Francisco, California, as well as in Nevada, where they have the reputation of being the fancy brands of the Pacific Coast. The butter is shipped in patent cases containing 92 pounds each, to customers in California and Eastern and Southern Nevada and it is also disposed of to home consumers in quantities to suit.
The capacity of the creamery is about 1,000 of butter and 1,500 pounds of cheese daily. There is no chance work about the manufacture of either. They are made on scientific principles and the product of one day is the same in quality as that of any other day. If, perchance, the milk should be brought to the creamery tainted with any foreign odor, by means of the aeration process it is eliminated. Cleanliness is the order of the day about the creamery.
Aurora's Prospects.
The Bodie Miner of Friday says: "Tom Donahue, a veteran prospector, was in town the early part of the week from Aurora. There is considerable interest being taken in the reported resumption of work in the mine owned by the English company, but it is not likely that anything will be done for two or three months. At present there is a great deal of snow there about as much as there is in Bodie, and no work can be done until it melts. In the meantime the Aurorians live in the hope that the report will prove true and that their camp will once more become a mining center of great activity."

CLEVELAND AND SILVER

The President Will Not Veto a Free Coinage Bill.
A special dispatch from Washington to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat tells the following story:
A Southern Senator has had a talk with the President on the silver question. This Senator is a strong advocate of silver, and he is independent enough to speak plainly at the White House.
"We are now in the majority in both ends of the Capitol," said he to the President. "Suppose that a majority of the representatives of the people of this country pass a silver bill, will you veto it?"
"I shall veto no bill," replied the President, "unless there are constitutional reasons for doing so."
"There can be no constitutional grounds for vetoing a silver bill," the Senator argued.
"A bill against which there are no constitutional grounds," replied the President, "will become a law. I may not sign it, but it will become a law, either with or without my signature. I shall not veto it."
"The Fifty-second Congress," said the Senator, "will never repeat the Sherman law, unless at the same time it enacts a substitute. It will never consent to the demonetization of silver. It will accept nothing worse for silver than the Bland bill."
After that the President and the Senator talked along the lines of compromise. The discussion was extremely frank. The Senator told the President he would certainly have to yield somewhat to the sentiment of Congress if he wanted anything accomplished in silver legislation, and the President stood up vigorously for his Eastern money views. But since coming from the visit the Senator expresses himself as satisfied that a compromise will be effected, though upon what basis he will not venture a guess.
"There can be no constitutional reason for the veto of a silver bill," he said. "Such a veto would simply be the exercise of the Presidential prerogative in the interest of Wall Street. I am satisfied from what the President told me that he will not resort to the veto to kill silver, although he disapproves the legislation. He will yield to the expressed will of the majority of his party so far as to let the bill become a law without his signature."
This is a new view of the President's position. Heretofore it has been taken for granted from his expression that he would certainly veto a silver bill, even if he had to set himself against a majority of his party. But the Senator is sure that he fully understood the President, and admits that he was greatly disappointed.
The Club Sierra.
The Club Sierra, which was organized only a few weeks ago, is in a flourishing condition. Every evening a number of young men can be seen wending their way toward the rooms of the club, and an hour or more is pleasantly and profitably whiled away in the perusal of the numerous papers, magazines and other literature placed at their convenience. The apartments are neatly and tastefully furnished, and nothing that would tend to the comfort of the young men has been overlooked.
The club was organized for the purpose of giving its members an opportunity of enjoying their evenings in a manner that would tend to give them knowledge as well as comfort, and to that end they have succeeded admirably. The selection of reading matter is of the best and purest. Card playing and the like is not tolerated, and for this the young men are to be complimented for it is seldom that an organization of this kind is complete without these draw backs.
Getting the "Mitten."
The Carson News, which is edited by a lady, and is therefore authentic on "courtship," and kindred subjects, says: "An old-time New England expression, 'getting the mitten,' meaning getting your offer of marriage rejected by your 'best girl,' has an origin in the customs of the earlier days. One hundred years ago gloves were knitted and worn in all families. If a young man, going home from singing school with the girl of his choice, was holding her mittens and to keep it from getting cold, and took that opportunity to urge his suit, if the offer proved acceptable the hand would remain. If taken by surprise an effort to withdraw the hand would leave the mitten. So the suitor would 'get the mitten,' but would not get the hand."

The Ann Arbor Strike.
Toledo, March 28.—At the opening of court this morning Judge Ricks stated that inasmuch as the cases of the Lake Shore engineers and those of the Ann Arbor road were of similar nature, and both very important, Judge Taft would decide both later than Monday next. Grand Chief Arthur then took the witness stand, and in answer to questions he said he had no knowledge about an order of court bearing on the case. He did not read it in the daily newspapers. He said he might have heard of it, but it was never brought to his notice. He said all the notices sent out to chairmen of the various committees notifying them of the strike on the Ann Arbor road were sent out by him. He declared he could not order a strike without the consent of the General Committee. The men were not obliged to obey his orders. He merely gave them advice. They could do as they pleased about taking it. This closed the evidence and argument on behalf of the Ann Arbor company began.
